The Historic Marquis Theatre in Downtown Northville Set To Screen Short Films at the Reel Michigan Film Festival at 5pm and a Community Screening of “Transforming Loss” at 8:30pm Saturday, June 29, 2013

As part of the fourth annual Arts and Acts Festival in downtown Northville, the Reel Michigan Film Festival 2013 will feature a diverse collection of Michigan-made short films beginning at 5pm at the historic Marquis Theatre, followed by a Q and A with filmmakers. At 8:30 pm, the Festival will hold a special community screening of Judith R. Burdick's documentary, “Transforming Loss”. Immediately following will be an after-party, with awards at Poole's Bak Bar.

The powerful documentary “Transforming Loss,” produced by Judith Burdick, provides first-person accounts of six Michigan families and their remarkable stories of profound loss and transformation.

This year, Reel Michigan is excited to announce Kathi J. Moore as emcee. A Michigan native, Moore has appeared in a wide range of acclaimed projects, most notably on film as Phyllis in the James Franco project “Tar” and on stage as Mrs. Ware in Dr. Sweet's Tinderbox. Behind the scenes, Kathi has contributed to Michigan's vibrant independent film community in casting and production and is a veteran of the burgeoning “48-hour” film genre.
